The prime MICPA-ICAA programme

THE Malaysian Institute of Certified Public Accountants – Institute of Chartered Accountants Australia (MICPA-ICAA) programme is fast gaining momentum as the professional accounting qualification of choice. The benefits obtained by candidates and successful graduates upon programme completion include:

- Dual membership – in both MICPA and ICAA
- Access to the Global Accounting Alliance (GAA)
- Pathway to becoming part of a global network of accounting professionals
- Strong technical accounting support and representation

Since the collaboration between MICPA and ICAA in 2009, it has made much sense for graduates from Australian universities to participate in the MICPA-ICAA Programme, as it allows them to also gain an Australian professional qualification – Chartered Accountant (Australia) as well as the Malaysian professional qualification – Certified Public Accountant (Malaysia). Coupled with the GAA passport, this opens doors for its members to practise as a professional accountant in the global arena, and accounting is indeed a global profession.

Hence, it was only natural for MICPA and Victoria University-Sunway Campus (VU) to form a collaboration to introduce the MICPA-ICAA Programme to the VU students. The official launch of the MICPA-VU collaboration took place on April 16 at the Sunway University campus. It was officiated by Sunway TES executive director Teo Ee Sing and the MICPA president Ken Pushpanathan. It was attended by VU's Accounting degree students.

The MICPA-ICAA Programme will give students international recognition.

Teo opened the event with a speech to introduce the partnership to the students, citing support provided by Sunway TES to students who chose to do the MICPA-ICAA Programme.

Sunway TES currently provides workshops to prepare students for the examinations through interactive learning and teaching methods that include working through real-life case studies, group discussions and reviewing sample examination questions.

Teo also strongly recommended the programme as one of the pathways to obtaining a professional accounting qualification. Being Australian graduates, the VU students would certainly find the programme easier to follow as it is based on the Australian style of learning and examination.

Pushpanathan shared with the students what the MICPA-ICAA Programme entails and the benefits of doing the programme. He was happy with the students' response received through the question and answer session.

"We hope that this collaboration between VU and MICPA-ICAA will bear fruit. We are confident that our programme will meet the students' needs, a qualification that will provide them with international recognition and will create seamless borders across countries making the world their global workplace."
